Overview:
The paper published its first issue on 30 October 1995. The name of the publisher and editor-in-chief given in this profile was based on that earliest issue. However, the current list of the Ministry of Information posted on its homepage shows that Tith Dara is the current publisher of the paper.

According to those early issues of the paper held by Yale University Library, the paper provided coverage for local news only and with a heavy educational piece of history on Khmer Krom or Khmer Kampuchea Krom that is currently South Vietnam. The land was part of the Cambodian territory in prior to 1949 before the French ruled, for its administrative purpose during its colonization, to be under Vietnam. A large number of Cambodian population are still living there and unfortunately have become a minority on own motherland. The editorial line of the paper seems to have aimed at providing a deeper understanding and an insight to this historical piece.

It was very clear, according to those early issues, that the Nokor Phnom News was a pro-Buddhist Liberal Democratic Party (BLDP) paper, the party that headed by Samdech Soen San. The paper also praised the leadership and achievements of the party president. It was not surprising at all that paper was strongly critical and highly anti-Vietnamese government.

It worthwhile to point out that there is no source confirmed on the current coverage of the paper as well as its political affiliation after the collapse of BLDP.
